VOTE NOW TO SUPPORT CASTLE HILL WOMAN CAROLYN CAMPBELL

Member for Castle Hill Ray Williams MP is encouraging The Hills community to support local Carolyn Campbell, who has been named as one of the finalists of the 2019 NSW Woman of the Year Awards.

“I want to congratulate Carolyn for her amazing contributions to our community, and I urge everyone in the Castle Hill electorate and The Hills Shire to take a look at her story online and show their support by submitting a vote,” Mr Williams said.

“Carolyn is a worthy candidate for the NSW Business Woman of the Year Award and I am thrilled her achievements have been recognised.”

Carolyn Campbell was selected for her vision, leadership and achievements in the worlds of Women’s Hockey and Netball, including her tenure as CEO of Netball NSW.

Minister for Women Tanya Davies today announced young female entrepreneurs, humanitarian ambassadors and cancer researchers are among the 28 finalists who have been nominated for the Awards ahead of the inaugural NSW Women’s Week.

“The Awards celebrate the extraordinary contributions of NSW women, and by casting a vote individuals not only help to recognise the finalists’ outstanding achievements, but also highlight their stories to inspire other women,” Mrs Davies said.

“This year’s finalists are just a handful of the thousands of women who make a difference in our communities, and I urge everyone across NSW to show their support by viewing these remarkable stories online and submitting their vote.”

Finalists are listed in the following 2019 Awards categories, which are now open to the public for online voting:

- Community Hero Award,
- Harvey Norman Young Woman of the Year Award,
- Rex Airlines Regional Woman of the Year Award,
- NSW Business Woman of the Year Award, and
- First State Super Lifetime Achievement Award.
